Dear Harold Weisberg:

I inclose $5.00 for Whitewash III.
The second volume is very impressive, except for it's not being clear to a person little acquainted with the subject matter. A good well written article on one after another of the subject in the I and II volumes could bring them into focus with power and effectiveness. You cover a lot of ground with fine documentation but you have not limned, polished any one part till it would be clear to the hasty and less informed reader. This is not an objection, only an observation to go along with the tribute I pay to your work.

My son heard you with Leo Sauvage debate over radio. After reading Sauvage's and your comments on Mark Lane and Epstein -- and vice versa -- I do want to urge charity for one another in this work. Ego is hard to overcome, but it is a major enemy and hurts the cause. Each man serves a role no other could as well serve. Epstein has made a major contribution -- but yet only a fragment of the whole. Lane has, and so has Sauvage. And we can certainly honor Penn Jones Jr. and Vincent Salandria.

We are all of us so caught up in the assassination matter that it is easy to lose perspective and teamwork, and those are qualities we increasingly need.

I got so steamed up over Richard Lewis's absurd attacks over "the scavengers" that I found myself in the same condition as you were in your radio appearance with Sauvage.

One of the items I most want in Whitewash III is the picture showing the west window of the 6th floor depository building was open at the time of the assassination. You did not mention that the Warren Report asserted that none were open but the Easternmost from which Oswald was presumed to have been shooting.

Best wishes,

Grissom Maggon
